

Which covariate drives species-level decisiveness?

Mass to the left of 0 = lower log_beta (more deterministic) with larger covariate

Do ECV + group size explain species variation?

Close to diagonal = covariates capture the between-species variation

